

Call for Papers and Panels

36th Annual PAC Conference

March 22-24, 2012 at the Ocean Creek Resort in Myrtle Beach, S.C.

We welcome papers and panels on any topic of interest to literature and language scholars. Past sessions have focused on English, American, world and multiethnic literatures, as well as on linguistics, composition, and pedagogy. Email proposals along with a brief abstract and CV by December 9, 2011:

American / British Topics

Dr. Gary Ettari (gettari@unca.edu)
Associate Professor of Literature and Language
University of North Carolina at Asheville

Foreign / Comparative / Linguistics / Pedagogy Topics

Dr. Kirsten Krick-Aigner (krickaignerka@wofford.edu)
Associate Professor of Foreign Languages
Wofford College

Panel proposals must include a letter of justification along with the session title; brief abstracts in English of all proposed papers; and the names, email addresses, and institutional affiliation of all participants.

Postscript (pachome.org/wp) is the peer-reviewed journal of the organization, which publishes scholarly papers, provided contributors become PAC members.

The Philological Association of the Carolinas
www.pachome.org